

Support for Trinity Families during COVID – do you need advice or resources for your young person?

Offer:

The pandemic has placed unique challenges on families and pupils, particularly those who are remaining at home for a variety of reasons. Trinity School is offering a remote support service to our families who need advice and resources on how to best to support their young people at home. This could include;

- Pupils with autism and other complex learning difficulties – Use of structure, routine and visuals to support learning, communication and play/leisure time.
- Pupils with profound and multiple learning difficulties – Sensory strategies for learning, communication and play/leisure time.
- Behaviour – Sensory behaviour, challenging behaviour, anxiety and frustration, social skills, behaviour in the community, managing change, etc.
- Life skills – Independence, routines, day-to-day self-help skills, going into the community, hygiene routines during COVID, sleep, incontinence, etc.

Delivered by:

Our Lead Trainer, Ken Payne, in consultation with various colleagues from the school (Senior Leadership, Managers, experienced teachers, SALTs, Sensory Integration Therapist and the Highly Specialist Behaviour Team).

Consultation will take place via TEAMS or a phone call at an agreed time.

Unfortunately, we are unable to make any home visits at this time.
